Headline:
Chilly and showery, frosty nights.

Today:
A mixture of sunny spells and scattered showers, some heavy with hail and thunder in a few places. Some snow likely on hills, perhaps also to low levels across northern Scotland at first. Feeling cold, though winds easing.

Tonight:
Showers mostly dying out. Clear spells for many, allowing a sharp frost in places. Rain affecting northern Scotland with snow on hills, whilst rain affects the far south of England.

Thursday:
Rain and hill snow moving south across Scotland. Rain in the far south of England clearing. Elsewhere, sunny spells with a few showers developing.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Sunny spells and showers, heaviest and most frequent in the north. Rain, heavy in the west, spreading north over the weekend, followed by blustery showers. Turning a little warmer.
